The trend of the number of virtual land sales on the 8 Major Metaverse platforms is different from the trend of the average sales price:

For the four projects of NFT Worlds, Decentraland, Worldwide Webb, and Voxels, the number of virtual land sales and the average sales price both fell in September, especially Voxels fell most significantly (as a remedy, Voxels will hold offline events in October to restore its market).

Otherside, The Sandbox, and Somnium Space showed a negative correlation between the number of virtual land sales and the average sales price in September, indicating that buyers are optimistic about the long-term value of these metaverse projects and buy on dips.

5. Rental Data

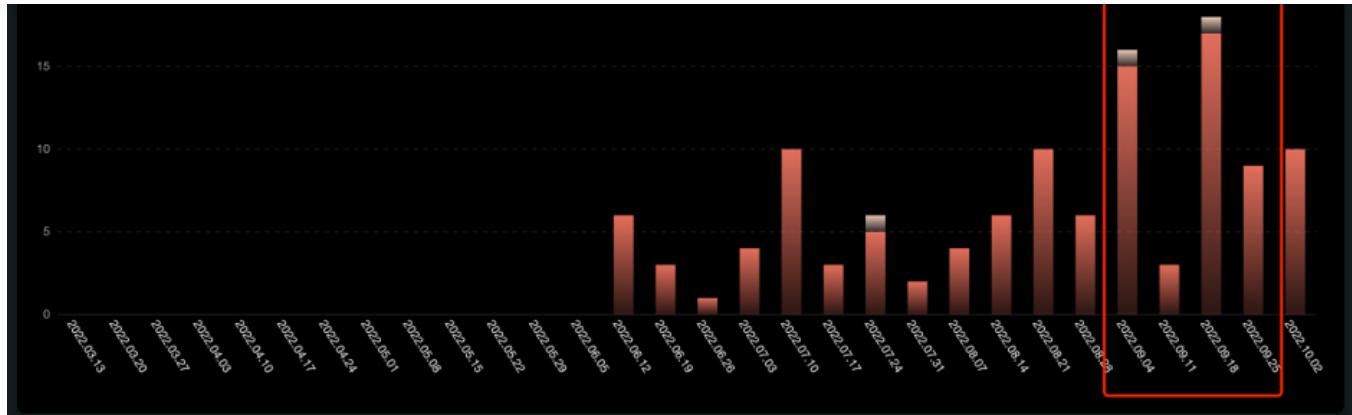

- Virtual land lease data is collected from LandWorks, which currently supports virtual land leases in Decentraland and Voxels.
- The number of virtual lands sold by LandWorks in September was 40, and the transaction value was US$8,300. “The Dubaverse”. The virtual world will follow The Sandbox’s blueprint for Hong Kong’s “Mega City” and will be built in collaboration with local companies in Dubai from various industries. Dubai’s crypto regulator, the Virtual Assets Regulatory Authority (VARA), is the first partner in the Dubai Metaverse and the first purchaser of real estate in Dubai’s virtual map. This cooperation will likely attract more local influential partners and brands. Sebastien Borget, co-founder and chief operating officer (COO) of Sandbox Paris, said The Sandbox will also launch other similar city-themed virtual worlds, such as Singapore, South Korea, and Turkey.
